TIMELY TOPICS

FRANCE AND GERMANY

We should all of us feel thankful that a great and terrible war has been averted. In an address in the House of Lords the other day, Lord Morley said: "It will give satisfaction to everybody to learn that the Franco German discussions have come to a conclusion and are acceptable to this country." Who said that wars are a necessity? By no means. A war between France and Germany would have put back the clock of progress a hundred years.

Wars are barbarous. Wars are inhuman. Wars are unkind. Wars are barbarous, because the method was used by the nations or peoples when they were barbarians and despised either of education or christianity. Wars are inhuman, because there is no such thing as humane war. A humane war would mean a humane slaughter of human beings, which is impossible.
Wars are unkind, because the suffering which wars always bring inevitably falls upon the innocent.
Innocent lives are sacrificed, property destroyed, countries devastated, and the gain is usually very small. If it is true that the influence of capitalists greatly assisted in averting that war, then all honor to the capitalists.
Humanity acknowledges its indebtude to those men.

ANOTHER WAR ENDED

This war was nearer home and affected us all to a certain extent.
We felt it because it decreased the output of coal and sent prices up high, which brought hardship to those little able to bear it, the working man.

An industrial war is near kin to a war between nations. It pits strength against strength; it is therefore brutal and barbarous. It is also inhuman, as inevitably the weakest goes to the wall. It is so unkind that innocent women and children are sometimes brought to the verge of starvation.
Inhuman masters must be eliminated.
Principles, not brute strength, must govern the actions of masters and men, otherwise unions are inhuman in their working as inhuman in their results. We do not want war between the classes and the masses, nor between masters and workmen.

Fights between the unions and the masters necessarily entail in-moral suffering, and when one side has gained the day he has lost more than he has gained.
Arbitration, based upon righteous principles, is the best, and is fair for both parties involved, and the cost on either side is reduced to a minimum.

It is not right that the consumer should have to be penalized by these necessities of life being raised to almost prohibitive prices just because either masters or men are unjust to each other and desire to resort to barbarous methods rather than yield to high righteous principles.

OUR NATURAL RESOURCES

It may be that these great industrial disputes, which result in bottling up the necessities of life for lengthy periods, will presently cause our governments to seriously consider the question of taking them over and working them for the people's good. Rest assured that that day is not very far off either. Governments have no right to hand over to private individuals, or to companies for that matter, resources that are a necessity to the people, for such private individuals to exploit and corner, and by so doing draw millions of money from a hard worked population. The railroads, the mines, the timber resources, the minerals, the marketing of grain—all these things should be adequately controlled by government, to save the consumer and the farmer and the working man from being imposed upon.

These things should not be exploited for personal gain, and some day the voice of the people will be heard and headed and we shall see a change.

TURKEY AND ITALY

The business of making war is a very expensive one, and Italy is finding this out just now. Turkey took the position of the under dog that did not want to fight, and Italy for a while had it all her own way. Italy had the navy.
Turkey had not, so Italy did all the fighting and all the crowing.
Now it seems that Turkey is aroused, and the hinterland of Tripoli is the scene of slaughter.
It is still to be hoped that the carriage will soon cease. Turkey is not the beleaguered country in the world and never has been, but once aroused, the followers of Islam can fight like demons, and there is nothing where or when it will stop.

CHINA IN THE TOILS

While we are enjoying representative government to the full China is struggling through the maze of idolatry, ancestor worship and tyranny, and her goal is a constitutional government, so that her best men may have a say in affairs. Poor China, a land of heathenish darkness, therefore a land of sorrows. Perhaps she will emerge from her dense darkness and ignorance, and we hope she will not close her eyes to the "Light of the World." How thankful we should be, we who know nothing else but righteous and christian government.
Yet there are times when we forget our own blessings and can see nothing else but our misfortunes and the things that we have not.

Struggle on China! your struggle is a proof that you have life and art worthy of a place in the world.

Guard the Children.

Every student of the social and moral conditions of our modern city life is bound to take into account the dangerous influences of the street as a contributing factor to youthful delinquency. There is a fascination, a glamor about the street at night which naturally appeals to the young. But it is often a fatal fascination. The boy or young man who finds more pleasure in walking the streets at night than he does in his home or study, not only misses the real happiness of life, but dooms himself so far as success or high attainment is concerned. Streetwalkers and pool-room and gamb-bling den habitues are not usually in demand. They may sometimes succeed in obtaining situations, but they are soon sized up as light weights, and flung aside to make way for men of capacity.

and character.

And what about the girls and young women who yield to the fascination of the street? It is even more fatal in their case. Yet how many young girls seen on the streets at night unaccompanied by parents or guardians?
Is it any wonder that some of them go astray? When one takes into consideration the numerous traps laid for the unwary, the danger of contact with the impure and vicious, the risk of falling into the hands of male or female rogues who prey upon the innocent, the wonder is perhaps that so many escape, says the secretary of the Calgary Children's Aid society, "let me appeal to you in kindness and sincerity. As one deeply interested in the work of helping and saving the young, as one whose business often brings him into relations with the votaries of the designing libertine, let me urge you, for your children's sake, for your own sake, to keep them off the streets at night. Save them from the temptations and influences that lead downward. Wise discipline and protective care may save you and them much sorrow and unavailing regret later."

These earnest words should strongly appeal to all who have

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She breathes, dusts, scrubbs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her head aching, her quivering nerves, the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit the body to relax. The housewife who is a woman is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" removes the cause of all housework fatigue, stimulates the circulation and relaxation, and cures those weak nerves that are the bane of life. It tranquillizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, and strengthens the body.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients, and the name of any mysterious and mysterious drugist persuades you that his substitute or unknown composition is "just as good" in order that he may make a bigger profit. Just send and shake your head!

DON'T WORRY---AND BREATHE.
If You Would Know the Meaning of Content and Health.

An English scientist, Gustave Wells by name, says: "Breath is one of the things that we can lay down a law about, as it is absolutely positive."

Under normal conditions it does not stimulate, but is a depressing, passing away of the spirit power.

A short waste of energy can be disappointed or to rebel against one's own self, but when one is much more bearable if only people would take things philosophically, as they do in England.

On the other hand, deep breathing, Mr. Wells says that those who have mastered the art of breathing can control their nerves, enabled to master them emotionally, they can overcome pain and secure the best results in the regulation of the circulation of the blood.

The control of the breathing prevents one from becoming hysterical, and can even cure acts leisurely, although not easily.

It can be adapted to your needs, for instance, in producing warmth or the opposite effect; or one can regulate the heart, which is so sensitive—in fact, the all-round value of deep and full breathing cannot be overestimated.

Thus, in the first place, it gives one a sense of well-being, and the first time that one practices it, it is the first and foremost, and one that can be regulated without difficulty.

One can learn how to breathe deeply and easily, people may not suspect it, and one can practice it when calm, poised and good-tempered.

Why the Wind Blows.

In reference to air currents and the reasons why the wind blows, a recent article in the "Daily Mail" of London, England, explains that air consists of gaseous particles, all trying to get together, and that when they are under certain conditions, they can be compelled to come closer together by means of pressure, and then separate by expansion.

A quart bottle, for example, holds 22 grains of air at 60° F. and 760 mm. of mercury. If the bottle be cooled by surrounding it with ice, the air inside contracts, and when the bottle is again heated through the bottle's neck, the quart of air now weighs more than 22 grains.

As the air expands, it tiny particles fly further apart, and many of them escape through the bottle's neck.

There is still a quart of air, but it weighs much more than the original 22 grains.

Now, consider the earth and the sun, the distance of varying air from the heat of the sun's heat. When the heat is greatest, the air is made lighter and expands.

Both the hot and the cold air, however, are drawn more or less evenly down to the ground.

In doing so it is just as though just as though a lump of lead dropped into a pail of water forces some of the water to rise, and the air to move equally warm at every part, and continue at a constant temperature, and continue to move.

It is the cause of heat and gravitation. In other words, the air moves from the place where weight or pressure is most toward the place where its weight or pressure is least.

A Bit of History.

The first windmill, used in its earliest form, was probably by which the energy of the wind is applied to useful purposes.

Windmills were erected in the 11th century, but their exact origin is lost in the oblivion of the past.

Their first use was probably ascribed to the Saracens, through the Crusaders.

Flashing their crimson banners, the Saracens, in Southern Europe, the Knights of Richard Coeur de Lion fought many strange battles.

The earliest record of windmills in Europe dates from the 12th century, dealing with certain difficulties in connection with windmills.

Windmills were first used in France to tides connected with windmills having been seen in Spain in Europe, America and other countries.

It is said that windmills have provided us with more efficient and reliable means of grinding corn or driving machinery than any other prominent power of the wind.

So in this country, windmills have become obsoletely useless.

In Holland they are still largely employed in draining the polders and grinding grain.

A Sound Telescope.

The telescope, as late patented in England, is a new instrument —kind of sound telescope that catches a faint noise and magnifies it 100 times the usual sound.

It can be rotated to point to any direction.

The sound waves from the distant source are brought to a focus and the sound waves are then passed through a flexible tube or ear pieces. The volume of sound as thus increased is said to be as great as would reach the unaided ear.

The instrument is expected to be of great service to the deaf.

It not only picks up fog horn and other sounds, but can be made to show their intensity, and also to receive until the noise is strongest.

"England owns the Kaiser, the finger diamond is the world's."

"Owens the diamond in the world, eh? That seems a shame when she can play baseball."—Washington Aces.

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have a doctor to relieve. Its effects are sure and lasting.

An old-fashioned quilt may be washed in a laundress. Blows it carefully, and then shake it well before hanging up in the wind. While drying, shake several times and it will be like new.

A sure sign that you don't know much is to think you know it all.

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

M. T.
Williams,

Unail Cuticure Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from skin eruptions, with the exception of those from Mr. T. Williams, 115 Faicle Ave., Winnipeg, claim that he is the only one who has cured certain skin diseases which did not respond to medical treatment.

He claims that he has treated over three months ago a terrible itching condition which had been present for six months. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body, so that I could hardly stand upright. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night could not sleep.

"What was that?" queried the statesman. "It was the silver question," replied the novelist.

The Point of View.

Some time ago, William Bryan was lecturing in Galt, the home of Robert E. Knowles, the well-known practical joker. Bryan was warmly entertained at Knox Manse while in Galt. The attendance at the lecture proved to be so great that the discerning lad hid this at the door of the rather large admission fee. It was not until Galt was presented to the Montreal miners, who had come north to Saskatchewan, that Bryan turned to his host and asked him why, in his opinion, the audience was so small.

"The thing that spoiled it," replied Mr. Bryan, "was that you fellows were too much interested in politics to attend the meeting." Then he turned to his host and asked him why the audience was so small.

"What was that?" queried the statesman. "It was the silver question," replied the novelist.

A young man, who has made a reputation for himself as an amateur sailor, has taken up a homestead near the village of Galt. The village is noted for the wildness of the wind across the prairie. When the young man first came to Galt three months ago he found that he was unable to sleep at night.

"I gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body, so that I could hardly stand upright. I suffered greatly with the itching and at night could not sleep.

"What was that?" queried the statesman. "It was the silver question," replied the novelist.

The girl of the house had kept at their home for two years and fifteen years of marriage.

Then, for two years they were taught housekeeping and the intricacies of the kitchen under an experienced housekeeper.

"Why do you insist on asking that young girl to stay?" Because," said Miss Cayenne, "when he's singing he isn't trying to converse."

"It is a little word that spoils some hair plans."

According to directions, Dr. J. H. Kellie, of the Canadian Medical Relief in the most acute form of summer dandruff, my time should be lost if I am to get rid of it. I act immediately on the stomach and immediately on the head, and I am sure that I will never think of trying to sing again.

The snowstorm which started Saturday and continued on Tuesday is still further delaying the already late harvest, and some of our farmers are beginning to wonder whether they will have their threshing done by Christmas.

Miss Zintal has given up her position here at the post office. She was intending returning to Ontario, and left on Monday for that purpose, accompanied by Mr. L. as far as Calgary—that makes two. The Rev. J. M. Beaton went on the same train to Calgary on his way to the Sunday School Convention at Edmonton—that makes 'em one.

The results of both the recent dominion elections and the provincial by-elections this week have given politicians some surprises. Once again the famous words of Sir John which he said regarding the uncertainty of horse races and elections are true.

The scarcity of threshing out—although we have 2c in this neighborhood—is now being very keenly felt here as the season is getting so late, and the snow coming now in frequent flurries, it is feared that many of our farmers might not be able to get threshed before spring.

Ontario Liberals will enter the provincial campaign under a new leader, N. W. Rowell, K.C., of Toronto, having accepted the proffered position at the annual meeting of the General Return Association of Ont., who has been working on an entirely new platform.

Very soon Christmas will be here. Why not see it in good time in choosing your Christmas greetings? Too often this is left until the last minute, and you are disappointed in not getting the quality you might have had had you made your selection early. The Hustler Job Department is now ready to handle the Christmas greeting trade with the finest line ever carried in Southern Alberta. Call and inspect samples while the line is complete.

The Plaintiff Lost
A very interesting decision was handed down in the district court of Macleod recently, in which Messrs. McNaught of Gramut appeared as plaintiff, suing Poundmaster A. T. Root of Bowville, Mr. Craig, who impounded the animal, and Ed. Currence of Claresholm, claiming the illegal impounding and the illegal sale of his horse as a plea for damages against the defendants. Campbell & Fawcett, who represented McNaught, argued that Root, as poundmaster, had not given a proper description of the brand in advertising the impounded horse of the plaintiff for sale. Ed. Currence, who purchased the horse, was a party to the defense. A.B. Hogg represented Mr. Root and J.R. Watt looked after the interest of Mr. Currence. We shall give the text of the decision in full, as we consider it will be educative in effect.

McNaught vs. Root et al.
The plaintiff's claim is against the defendant Root as poundkeeper for non-compliance with his duties as such in respect of a mare belonging to him (the plaintiff) and impounded by the defendant Craig, and bought by the defendant Currence at a sale held under the Pound District Ordinance.

From the evidence adduced at the trial, and subsequently arranged by the respective counsel, I find that the mare was properly impounded by the defendant Craig, that the defendant Currence bought the mare in good faith and was entitled to rely on the title that the Ordinance gave him; that the defendant Root practically complied with the Ordinance in that behalf, subject to the qualifications subjoined. This last named defendant (Root) it was clear from what transpired at the trial was poorly qualified to act as pound keeper, not only because his powers of reading and writing extremely limited but because of his inexperience in reading brands. Recognizing this he availed himself of the services of Mr. Hitchcock who was a better qualified person to assist him. Both of them tried to decipher the brand, but succeeded somewhat imperfectly. Had they availed themselves of the brand

Book the result might have been that they would have been led to find the owner, but Root, it was sworn to had, not consulted the Brand Book on the ground that by so doing he had got himself in trouble on a previous occasion. In view of the brands not being decipherable with, certainty I think he should have exhausted every means in his power to ascertain what the brands were and that he should have consulted the Brand Book. The plaintiff deposed that the brands as given in the advertisements in the Gazette which were supplied by the defendant, would not if he had seen them, have put him on the enquiry, as being misleading. I do not think that an ordinary person not being a cattleman would have been misled by the description.

I mention cattlemen because this class are from force of habit very particular in describing marks on cattle and make use of what I might term "trade descriptions" to define these marks which would rather confuse than enlighten a person not accustomed to handling cattle. That fact of the mare having a foal after she was lost must also have been a factor in the plaintiff's non-recognition of the animal.

The plaintiff appears to have made some inquiries from the defendant Root, but did not get a definite answer.
